This month's webinar explores telemonitoring and marks the launch of the National Remote Patient Monitoring guidelines developed from experience and guidance from members of the Virtual Health Industry Group (VHIG) within the NZ Health IT (NZHIT) cluster, in collaboration with the New Zealand Telehealth Leadership Group (NZTLG).

In a COVID-19 world keeping patients connected to care is important but has its challenges. Panellists will discuss the implementation of Remote Patient Monitoring (RPM) in the real world, and how technologies are an enabler to provide valuable patient data, which is shown to improve patient outcomes.

The webinar will cover:

- Definitions of remote patient monitoring
- What can you do with remote patient monitoring and learnings from local implementation
- Myth busting and expectation setting
- Insights for the future

Attendees will learn how they can make telehealth a viable, long-term solution through remote patient monitoring.
