YOU'RE INVITED TO A TELEHEALTH WEBINAR:

Remote Patient Monitoring - Equity of Access

THURSDAY 15 OCTOBER 12.30PM – 1.30PM

FACILITATOR:
Jess Morgan-French
Programme Manager – NZ Telehealth Forum

Remote patient monitoring is reshaping how healthcare reaches communities — but only if it reaches everyone. Join us for a webinar exploring remote patient monitoring (RPM) through an equity of access lens, featuring practical examples from across the motu.

We'll hear from three speakers on the ground: Erik McClain (Health NZ) on Hospital in the Home and what it takes to safely extend acute care into people's homes; Malik Rizwan (OctansCare) on how the OctansCare app is building RPM capability that works for diverse communities; and Rebekka Costello (NIB) on lessons from a pilot hosted in Tairāwhiti and what it reveals about delivering equitable remote care in regional and rural settings.

This session will dig into the practical realities of RPM — infrastructure, connectivity, digital literacy, and community trust — and what's needed to make sure virtual care genuinely extends access rather than widening existing gaps.

Don't miss this opportunity to hear directly from practitioners doing this work, and to put your questions to our speakers in a live Q&A. We welcome anyone interested in health equity, telehealth, and virtual care to join the conversation.

YOUR QUESTIONS MATTER!
Participate in a dedicated Q&A session.
